MULTIDISCIPLINARY SCIENCES

JUNE 20th, 2014 (WHITE FRIDAY)

The EDEN VI international workshop, hosted by the University of Pitesti (UPIT) on 20th June 2014 will present the current work and the new ideas in the exploratory domains of Econophysics by researchers from around the world. Animate Econophysics, Sociophysics & Other Multidisciplinary Sciences have played a significant role in economic and social modelling but still remains understudied in modern universities despite the specific capacity in understanding and describing social and economic processes. As author you are invited to submit and present original, unpublished manuscripts that address any phase or aspect of the new sciences, from the second to the third aggregation level (Econophysics and Econobiophysics, Sociophysics and Sociobiophysics, Demographysics and Ecodemographysics, Human Ecology and Human Ecologyphysics and many other Trans-, Inter-, Cross and Multidisciplinary Sciences) based on the scientific modelling process, such as new domains and methods for studying modern finance, recession and growth, convergence and emergence, management under risk and uncertainty, and the influences of, and effects on, social economic development, or may focus solely on one domain, model or method. The papers are not limited to these animate econophysics, sociophysics & other multidisciplinary sciences (social networks, organizational models, complexity science, etc. being naturally accepted).
